

Climate Change Community Champion (HVC - 1073)

Organisation: Havering Volunteer Centre

Description

Do you want to help get your local community talking about climate change and sustainability and learn how the small actions everyone takes can help Havering and the planet?

In partnership with Havering Volunteer Centre; Havering Council are looking to recruit local volunteers to form Havering's first ever Climate Change Community Champions made up of:

- Interested residents
- Community Groups and Organisations
- Schools and Colleges
- Faith Groups
- Local businesses

You don't need to be a climate change and sustainability expert - we want to hear from individuals from all walks of life who love talking to people, want to make a change, learn new skills and tips, and be happy to support others and share experiences.

The core function of the role will be to promote Climate Change and Sustainability, engaging and encouraging through effective communication and leading by example to help residents to do the same

About Organisation

Havering Volunteer Centre is a small, local independent charity formalised in October 2015 who have the responsibility to the Havering community to deliver relevant services that are needed, appropriate and sustainable. We do this by engaging and supporting other local Volunteer Involving Organisations (VIO's) to support them with the recruitment and retention of volunteers. Our main focus is the community and how to support them to develop, enhance and experience new life journeys by offering them a bespoke, person focused service.

Skills

We only ask that you are:

enthusiastic about Climate Change and Sustainability, are willing to learn more about current local and global issues and are able to commit a certain amount of time to the role.

Successful champions will tend to have the following attributes:

- optimistic
- collaborative
- approachable
- motivated

The "perfect" Climate Change champion isn't someone that necessarily has all of the above, however, they are someone that wants to learn and is able to share information. To bring people together that have additional skills and can enable them to get involved.

Climate Change Community Champions will be provided with training and a series of workshops and events to attend.
